SCHOOL ROW NOT SETTLED

THE SITUATION AT CONCEPTION JUNCTION UNCHANGED.

ADVISES COMPROMISE

Conception Courier Says School District May Lose Money Unless Boards Reach An Agreement.

School is scheduled to be resumed at Conception Junction Monday morning but due to a disagreement between the former and newly-elected boards it is not known who will teach. The old school board had elected a set of teachers for the next school year but the new directors later selected an entirely different faculty.

The Conception Courier printed, in this week's edition of the paper, the following:

"Complying with a suggestion made by County Superintendent Somerville, the public schools of Nodaway County, as a rule, will open for the 1926-27 term, Monday, August 30, instead of September 6. The public school of this place will be among those schools following the suggestion of Mr. Somerville, and the much vexed question as to 'who is who and why' will be determined. Of course the matter is settled in as far as a majority of the board of education is concerned and possibly their decision will stand. Two sets of teachers have been employed for this district and as only one set can serve, the other corps will be barred. As the contracts with all the teachers employed are absolutely binding on the district, complications that will be far reaching will arise and the aftermath may be very disagreeable. Quoting a prominent member of the board of education, who being interviewed upon the subject, made the following statement, 'The district may have to pay both sets of teachers which will be too bad for the district;' but there is a question as to who will be compelled to pay the teachers whose contracts have thus been set aside and not permitted to teach. In view of the fact that a compromise might have been reached, and the factional fight now being waged avoided, it begins to look as if there is a bare possibility that when it comes to paying the teachers who remain idle, through no fault of their own, the taxpayers may balk at paying for something for which they are not getting value received and in such an event it might be 'too bad' for a majority of the present board of education. If an appeal to the court should be made by the teachers thus barred, judgments to the amount of $5,220, plus damages and court costs, may be rendered. These judgments, etc., would have to be paid by someone and a protest on the part of the taxpayers might saddle the burden upon those responsible for bringing about the controversy. Individually it does not concern us as to who shall make up the personnel of the teaching corps, but we are very much interested in maintaining the present status of our school, and in order to do this only such teachers should be employed as are duly qualified both mentally and morally and are so equipped as to comply with the requirements of the state superintendent and his assistants. It is not too late yet to adust jmatters and effect a compromise that would be absolutely satisfactory to the patrons of the district."

Elmo Man Charged With Misuse of Mails

Ray Horn Sent to Jail When He Cannot Give Bond in Federal Court

Ray Horn, twenty-three years old, of Elmo, was arraigned before Richard S. Duncan, United States commissioner, Friday morning in St. Joseph, on a charge of misuse of the mails. He was sent to jail when he was unable to furnish bond of $1,000. Horn waived a preliminary hearing.

Horn was taken to St. Joseph Friday morning from Elmo by L. C. Wilson, deputy United States marshal, after F. D. Flora, postoffice inspector, had filed a complaint against him.

Horn is alleged to have mailed a forged check for $50 to the banking house of Wilcoxson & Co. at Carrollton, Mo., and requested that the money be sent him at Avalon, Mo.

532 CARS USE NO. 27 IN DAY

THIRD TRAFFIC COUNT ON SOUTH PAVING MADE YESTERDAY.

FINAL CHECK SUNDAY

Yesterday's Figures Show Many Cars From Other States And Increase In Number Of Passengers.

Five hundred and thirty-two cars, carrying 1,279 passengers and ninety-eight trucks passed over the concrete paving south of Maryville yesterday, between 7 a. m. and 11 p. m., according to the traffic count made for the state and federal highway officials.

The tallying yesterday was made by Steve Donahue and Jim Hantz under the direction of Martin Dechman, superintendent of maintenance in Nodaway and Andrew Counties for the state highway commission.

This is the third of a series of four counts that are being made. The first check was made a week ago last Monday, the second, last Tuesday and the third yesterday. The final count will be made tomorrow. These figures are taken at Davis Center, ten miles south of Maryville.

Increase In Passengers.

The figures of yesterday showed 14 less cars than last Tuesday but 115 more cars than the first count. However, 18 more passengers passed over the concrete yesterday than Tuesday and 210 more passengers than during the first day's check.

Ninety-eight trucks passed over this road yesterday and Mr. Dechman said a majority of the out-of-state trucks were from Iowa. Most of them were carrying livestock, although a few were hauling household goods.

163 "Foreign" Cars.

One hundred and sixty-three passenger cars from fourteen outside states sped by the checking stand yesterday. Iowa led these cars with 40, Kansas was next with 29, and Nebraska was third with 12. The other states represented with less than four cars each were: Illinois, Oklahoma, Colorado, Arkansas, South Dakota, Virginia, Minnesota, North Dakota, New Mexico, Arizona and North Carolina.

Mr. Dechman estimated that more than a thousand cars would use this road tomorrow. Since these counts are taken near the end of the pavement, they are regarded as an accurate index of the business use of the highway. This road is state highway No. 27 and federal highway No. 71 and these counts will help to determine the type of surfacing to be used on the remainder of the road.

LOCAL MEN GET PATENT

ALBERT AND PAUL KUCHS, ROY GEARHART ARE INVENTORS

IS A NOVEL MACHINE

Westinghouse Electric Company Loses Suit Over Soldering Machine to Maryville Men

Five years after perfecting a soldering and welding machine, Albert and Paul Kuchs, of Maryville, and Roy Gearhart, of Kansas City but formerly of this city, have been granted a patent on the apparatus. The Westinghouse Electric Company, of East Pittsburg, Pa., also had filed for the patent but following a suit extending over a period of years the Maryville men were adjudged the inventors and patent papers were sent to them this week.

The machine is the idea of the Kuchs brothers, jewelers here, and the thing was developed in the Kansas City workshop of Mr. Gearhart, who also is well known in Maryville. Since the invention of the apparatus it has been in use in the repair department of the jewelry store and has proved very successful. Other of the machines are now in use in Kansas City where it is claimed that users are saving much money as the result of adding the device to their equipment.

Fourteen novel points on the apparatus were listed by the patent office as being the grounds on which the patent was issued. One of the features is that the heat of the soldering machine can be controlled at all times. All of the heat used is concentrated on the points to be welded together making it possible to join fine pieces and valuable metals with safety.

The old method of soldering rings was to wrap the stones in wet tissues paper, pin the article to a block of charcoal and then with the aid of a blowtorch put enough heat on the points to be soldered in order to make a welding possible. Danger of damaging the stone lay in such a process. The welding machine now makes it possible to subject the points to be soldered to the hot metal tips of the machine without endangering any precious stone which might be mounted in the ring.

The machine also is adaptable for use on linotypes and other devices where a controlled heat is needed.

The manufacturing rights on the apparatus have not yet been disposed of as the inventors have not had time, since the patent was granted, to offer it for sale.

REVIVAL OF FATHERLAND?

GERMAN PATRIOTS TODAY OPEN BIG CELEBRATION.

REUNION OF SOLDIERS

Almost All Units Of The Imperial Army Represented—Are Wearing Gaudy War Uniforms.

Nuremburg, Aug. 28.—As a counterblast against the Republicans' celebration of Constitution Day, the nationalists in this historic city today began a two-day reunion of patriotic ex-service men, which, according to the program issued for the occasion, is to be a "milestone on the road to the fatherland's patriotic revival."

If splendor and military exhibitions are indications of strength, the nationalist movement is, after its temporary setback, again coming to the fore. For these two days, ushered in this morning with their reveille, sounded by military bands stationed all over the city, promise to be an impressive martial spectacle, such as the country has not witnessed since the days when the kaiser reviewed such demonstrations.

According to conservative estimates, 100,000 uniformed ex-soldiers have responded to the call of the nationalists. Almost all units of the imperial army are represented.

The ex-generals alone would form a small regiment. Clad in gaudy pre-war uniforms, the old Prussian eagle flashing on spiked helmets, their chests covered with tokens of distinguished careers, these generals return salutes with old-fashioned gravity, as if there had been neither a war nor peace.

Prominent among the guests of honor are the ex-crown princes of Germany and of Bavaria, princes of minor standing and east and finally, General Ludendorff, making his first public appearance since his divorce.

Following the reveille, the troops will parade at noon on a large square in the center of the city, where the princes and their suite of generals are to review the formations and to make speeches, with airplanes soaring overhead, dropping flowers and handbills.

Afternoon will see the principal guests in council considering ways and means to consolidate the forces which their appeal brought together. Towards evening there is scheduled a round of banquets and other festivities where important speeches are expected. And after dark will come the culmination of today's proceedings—a torchlight parade in front of the hotel of the princes and generals with patriotic speeches from the balcony.

Session of Circuit Court Held Today

Northwestern Bank Given Possession Of Notes With First National Bank, B. J., As Preferred Creditor.

A special session of circuit court was held this afternoon with Judge John M. Dawson on the bench. The suit of C. E. French, state bank commissioner and S. E. Evans, special deputy commissioner in charge of the Northwestern Bank of Burlington Junction against the First National Bank of Burlington Junction, relative to the status of notes amounting to $9,941.37, was decided in favor of the Northwestern Bank by agreement of the attorneys on both sides. These notes were given to the First National Bank on the day before the Northwestern Bank closed to make up an overdraft which resulted when a draft on the Northwestern Bank was turned down. The First National Bank will have a preferred claim against the Northwestern Bank, it was said.

Two applications for the sale of property belonging to the Bank of Hopkins, Frank H. Barrett, special deputy commissioner, were sustained by the court. One order is for the sale of 95 bushels of oats which were harvested on the bank farm and which can be sold at 34 cents a bushel. The other order is for the sale of four mules which will bring $170.50, known as the mules belonging to Wm. Nicola.

Lowell L. Livengood, superintendent of the Elmo schools, was enrolled as a member of the Nodaway County bar upon motion of Ellis G. Cook at this afternoon's session. Mr. Cook stated Mr. Livengood was his former pupil when he was a teacher in the Elmo schools several years ago.

Viola and Dorothy Henderson returned today from a week's visit with relatives in Rosendale.

CHANNEL IS BEAT AGAIN

NEW YORK MOTHER SECOND OF SEX TO SWIM CANNEL.

HER SECOND ATTEMPT

Mrs. Clemington Carson, Mother Of Two, Swims From France To England In 15 Hours And 28 Minutes.

Dover, Aug. 28.—Again a woman has conquered the English channel.

Mrs. Clemington Carson of New York landed at Dover this afternoon to become the second woman in history to swim the English channel. The pretty New York woman reached the English shore at 3 o'clock this afternoon having been in the water 15 hours and 28 minutes. The record of 14 hours and 32 minutes of Gertrude Ederle still stands but the New York woman, mother of two children, made a valiant attempt to lower the record set by the sturdy "Trudy."

Mrs. Carson is 27 years old and the mother of two children. Before her marriage she was Miss Amelia Gade. She is a Dane and first came into prominence in 1921 when she swam around New York City in 14 hours and 57 minutes and later swam the Hudson River from Albany to New York City, 153 miles, in 63 hours and 35 minutes, actual time in the water.

Recently she swam from Dover to Ramsgate in 6 hours, 20 minutes.

In her previous attempt at the English channel in 1923, Mrs. Carson, who started from the English side, got within two miles of the French coast in 14½ hours, when she had to leave the water because of its roughness.

The final try of Ishak Helmy, the giant Egyptian, for 1926, nearly ended fatally for him. He entered the water at 11 o'clock last night, despite the warning of his physician, with Dover as his objective. At first he made good progress, having covered 4½ miles in three hours.

Then, suddenly, he was stricken with violent abdominal pains and collapsed. He undoubtedly would have drowned but for the prompt action of Jabez Wolffe, noted trainer, who leaped into the sea and caught him just as he was sinking.

LEAGUE FACES HARD PROBLEM

TWO AMERICAN GOVERNMENTS IN DISPUTE—ONE APPEALS

MAY DRAW U. S. IN

Nicaragua Accuses Mexico of Helping Revolutionists—Clash With Monroe Doctrine Will Involve U. S.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 28. — The long awaited task of the League of Nations officials to intervene in a dispute between two American republics appeared to be at hand today and is causing considerable excitement in Washington. Nicaragua, a government the United States does not recognize, has appealed to the League of Nations, complaining that Mexican warships have taken part in the recent revolution against the present Nicaraguan government. Mexico is not a member of the League of Nations and Nicaragua is.

A head-on collision between the League of Nations and the Monroe Doctrine constitutes one of the possibilities of the South American appeal. It has created a situation that official Washington has long anticipated and is being watched not without some trepidations of the League of Nations policy towards the Monroe Doctrine which has stood for more than a century as an American bulwark against encroachment of European affairs in the Western hemisphere.

This is the first time a Latin-American dispute has come before the league, and so opens the question as to what attitude the league will adopt in a dispute arising on the American continent. The covenant prohibits any action affecting the validity of the Monroe Doctrine.

The league is awaiting an answer to the Nicaraguan accusation, so that both sides may be told. There is speculation as to whether the protest will merge into a definite appeal for investigation by the council as a matter affecting friendly relations, especially as the Nicaraguan foreign minister has denounced Mexico to the world as having flagrantly violated the rights of the Nicaraguan republic by the use of force.

Should this occur, the council would make an investigation and recommend such action as seemed best. Then, if Mexico refused to accept temporary membership in the league and resorted to war, league penalties would operate against her.

Washington, Aug. 28.—A detachment of sailors and marines landed at Bluefields, Nicaragua today, from the American gunboat, Galveston, the state department was advised. The reports from the native governor said that he was unable to afford adequate protection to American lives and property. The uprising there is reported to have reached serious proportions. Another cruiser is said to have been ordered to report to these waters.

Mexico City, Aug. 28.—The complaint of the Nicaraguan government, lodged with the secretariat of the League of Nations at Geneva, charging that the revolutionary government in Nicaragua had received assistance and support from Mexico, threatens to create international complications involving the United States, Mexican papers stated today. These papers featured this possibility together with the story of the fight of two American aviators in the employ of the Nicaraguan government on one of its ships.

Texas Voting Again For Gov. Candidates

Dallas, Aug. 28.—Voting was "spotted" in the Texas democratic run-off primary today according to a United Press poll shortly after noon today. Inclement weather is keeping many away from the polls in Dallas County. "Ma" Ferguson is making her last attempt to beat Dan Moody for the democratic nomination for governor, which in Texas is almost equivalent to election. Moody led Ferguson by a big plurality in the first primary.

Weather

Partly cloudy today and Sunday with probably local showers and thunder storms tonight; continued warm.

THE ONLY DAILY PAPER IN NODAWAY COUNTY

AVOIDING STRIKES.

Matthew Wohl, one of the country's foremost labor leaders, tells a big labor convention that "organized labor should avoid the use of strikes wherever and whenever possible." He bases his advice on experience.

"It is a mistaken idea," he added, "to think that strikes should ever be resorted to."

There can be no objection to that. The strike is a declaration of industrial war, and cannot be absolutely banned as long as we still justify resort to arms in national emergencies. But more and more, the sentiment of mankind is coming to condemn both military and industrial warfare as wickedly wasteful and unreasonable if not downright immoral, and to seek peaceful means of avoiding them.

Mr. Wohl says that "greater skill and ingenuity" appear in obtaining acceptable results without resort to strikes. It will help industrial and international peace mightily if that fact is more widely recognized. Ordinarily, in the past, honor and respect have gone not so much to the peaceful victors as to the fighters. But conditions are changing.

LAST WORD ON JAZZ.

Don't try to abolish jazz, advises Col. Mackenzie Rogan, a distinguished British musical director. It may torment the cultivated ear, and the lavish rewards of its practitioners may be resented by genuine musical artists; but for all that, it needn't be condemned off-hand, and efforts to banish it are futile.

"You cannot abolish jazz any more than you can extinguish the music hall song, the penny novelet, the chromo-lithograph ,or any of the other humbler forms of art, so long as it offers something which gratifies the elementary artistic needs of the masses.

"The people who drench themselves in jazz will surely tire of it in time, and then, music having become part of their daily lives, they may call, one hopes, for something better.

"If you cannot force people to enjoy good music, good pictures, good books, you can at least see to it that the best is ready for them when they want it.

This may serve as the last of many words on jazz.

LAZY STARS.

Helium stars travel at a rate of only four miles a second. Why, the lazy things! They don't rush around the sky like their yellow neighbors, who travel about three times as fast. They just dawdle along. And mostly they have companions on the way. Almost every helium star has a consort, not a planet but another star only slightly dimmer than the ones we can see.

Family men, so to speak, these helium fellows. Not dashing about like the single stars, but adapting their space to the slower movement of the weaker vessel. And do they lose anything, may we ask? Rather, we are inclined to think that in this easy-going four miles a second they probably have a lot better time and see far more of the universe as they go along.

If it doesn't accomplish anything else, that old Norse model that has just sailed across the Atlantic should teach a lot of us how to spell Leif Erickson.

Mob Threatens 2 Captured Bandits

Brother Bank Bandits Who Killed Deputy Sheriff, Are In Ark. Jail Now Surrounded by Angry Mob.

Van Buren, Ark., Aug. 28.—An angry crowd of approximately 300 persons, gathered about the county jail here when George and Matthew Kimes, Arkansas outlaws, are held following their capture by a posse early today. Officers are guarding against any possibility of violence.

The bandits, both of whom were wounded in a gun battle with their captors eluded scores of posse men all day Wednesday and "shot it out" with the posses, killing Terry Chuculate, deputy sheriff and wounding two other officers.

The brothers were cornered near here early this morning and were forced to surrender after being wounded in an exchange of shots. Both are wanted in Oklahoma for recent bank robberies.

Sallisaw, Ark., Aug. 28.—Two youthful bandits, who helped to rob two Covington, Okla., banks Wednesday and who yesterday shot their way through a score of posses, killing one peace officer and wounding two others, were finally captured today at Rudy, Ark., 20 miles north of Van Buren in the hill country. Both were injured, according to J. C. Woll and were taken to a hospital in Van Buren.

Their capture climaxed one of the greatest manhunts that ever took place in Eastern Oklahoma and Arkansas. Two battles between the outlaws and their pursuers took place, one in sequoyah County, Oklahoma and the other near Rudy, Ark.

Rodgers to Final Rest in Arlington

Famous Navy Aviator To Be Buried With Full Military Honors Tuesday—Navy Forces Will Carry On His Work.

Washington, Aug. 28.—The navy air forces, despite the accident which resulted in the death of Commander John Rodgers yesterday, will carry on their plans for a Panama flight and other long test flights which Rodgers was to have directed, it was understood here today.

Washington, Aug. 28.—The body of Commander John Rodgers, hero of the San Francisco-Hawaiian flight, who was killed yesterday when his plane dropped in the Delaware River, near Philadelphia, will be buried in Arlington National Cemetery with full military honors, it was announced this afternoon. The services will take place Tuesday afternoon.

The brave and resourceful navy flier, who warded off death on the broad Pacific Ocean, was killed as the result of a drop in a land plane into shallow water of the Delaware River this afternoon. He was so critically injured that death overtook him in the naval hospital in two hours. He died at 5 o'clock.

"The cause of death, so far as navy surgeons could determine tonight, was hemorrhages due to broken ribs puncturing vital organs. Many of the ribs on one side were crushed in. One of his legs was broken in two places and cut open."

Surgeons said unofficially they believed shock hastened the commander's death. At first they said the shock acted something like a local anesthetic and permitted him to remain conscious and talk with those about him. Then as the sudden dulling of senses passed away and the agony of his injuries made itself manifest, he crumpled.

Until the very last Commander Rodgers talked with those about him during his period of consciousness.

In an effort to determine how Commander Rodgers met his death when his plane dived into the Delaware River, a board of inquiry met at the navy yards here today.

Their report, which was forwarded to Rear-Admiral Magrude, commandant of the navy yards, was not made public. Broken ribs, which punctured his lungs are understood to have been the cause of his death.

FARM GLIMPSES

By BILLY TILSON

Floyd VanVelson of the Harmany neighborhood was transacting business in the city yesterday. He says they have had two very good rains lately and the corn and grass are doing fairly well.

Roy Sharp, west of Quitman reports the corn looking like a very fair yield over that way. Stock are holding their own and considerable plowing is being done. While he doesn't think that a very large acreage of wheat will be sown this fall, the farmers that are plowing will have their ground in better condition for corn next year.

D. Clark Gray and family east of Clearmont returned home a few days ago from a visit in the Dakotas. Mr. Gray says he didn't see many good fields of corn on his trip and in some localities the corn was nearly burnt up and he thinks that more good corn will be seen in driving from Clearmont to Maryville than he saw on all his travels up north.

Reports from over the county show that the marketable hogs are getting scarce and the supply of spring pigs are below the average in number and there doesn't seem to be much danger of the hog market going down and from all reports, think that the outlook is for a better price along all lines of stock which is being fed at this time.

Andy Van Sickle and Will Dougherty, of Elmo neighborhood, were in the City yesterday. They report quite a number of the farmers plowing and considerable fall wheat will be sown this fall. They don't think corn will be a very heavy yield as some fields are badly damaged.

George Ulmer and wife, southwest of Hopkins, who have been visiting in the West for the past month arrived home a few days ago. Mr. Ulmer said after traveling through parts of Colorado, Kansas and Nebraska, and seeing the conditions of the corn that it made him feel good after looking over the Nodaway county fields, and after traveling over a part of the western states is thoroughly convinced that old Nodaway is a place that one should never thing of leaving.

Otto Risser, southwest of Parnell, had the misfortune to break his right arm just above the wrist, a few days ago. He was hauling corn in a truck and had stopped the engine for a few minutes, and in cranking, it back-fired, the crank striking his arm. It is causing him considerable pain.

E. L. Jackson, of the south part of the county and George Drydale of the same community, were Maryville visitors yesterday. They say that rain is needed for plowing and grass. The last few days hot weather is killing the grass in a great many localities.

Robert Pittsenberger and family, west of Bedison, were Maryville visitors yesterday. Bob says they are needing rain very badly down that way. It is hurrying the stock to hold their own these days.

98 Here Yesterday

The maximum temperature yesterday was 98, according to C. E. Wells, weather observer during the absence of J. R. Brink, who left this morning on a trip to western points. The temperature at 11:45 this morning was 88 and it is expected it will nearly reach yesterday's high mark.

Mr. Brink accompanied by George Herren left in a car for a two or three week's trip to points in Colorado. A camping outfit was taken along and they intend to camp out.

Stephen Naehr and daughter, Frances Marie, and Romaine Riley, a niece left this afternoon for their home at Leavenworth, Kan., after a short visit with Mr. Naeher's sister, Mrs. Wilbur Allen, and family. Miss Catherine Naeher, a sister of Mrs. Allen, who accompanied them here, remained for a week's visit.

NODAWAY GETS $35 FOR PRIZE

CHECK COMES TODAY FOR STATE FAIR ATTENDANCE.

FOR PREMIUMS HERE

Money Will Probably Be Used for Awards In Poultry Show Planned Here This Winter.

J. Ross Fleetwood, state fair commissioner of Nodaway County, received this morning a check for $35 made out to the county court which is the sixth prize in the greater attendance contest campaign at the state fair at Sedalia.

According to the rules of the contest, this prize money is to be paid out as premiums to agriculture, live stock, poultry or horticultural shows held here. As a poultry show is to be held here in December, the money will probably go for premiums for that show.

In his letter from W. D. Smith, secretary, he says:

"I thank you for your services as commissioner from your county to the Missouri State Fair and congratulate you and your county on their attendance. If there is anything that we can do to help you in any way the coming year, do not hesitate to command the service."

Burlington Junction

(J. Howard Thompson, Correspondent)

W. W. Potts and wife, accompanied by their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Yates of Maryville, left last Wednesday morning by auto for Bartlesville, Okla., for a two weeks outing and visit with relatives and friends.

Mrs. Nellie Houston and her two daughters, the Misses Marjorie Dean, and Alice left Friday morning for St. Louis, where they will visit with a sister of Mrs. Houston for the next two weeks, returning in time to start the girls in school.

There were a few minor errors in the last "write up" of news from this community, due largely to the mis-information of the writer. In the future we shall endeavor to be accurate in all we shall say or write.

Burlington Junction and the patronizing territory are noted for their produce business. The town has three produce houses, each one doing a big business. These are of untold benefit to the farmers here about, as they keep them supplied with cash all the time.

After a few years of town life, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Corken are moving back to their fine farm two miles southwest of town. Here they, with their son, Hubert, will manage the farm and feed stock. They have on their farm 160 acres of as fine corn as ever grew in Nodaway County.

The Methodist people are improving their church building by way of a new roof, and inside cleaning. They are putting on the composition shingle, laid over the old shingle, with copper valleys. The Industrial Society of the church is financing the project.

J. R. Bales, one of our older residents, and a painter and paperhanger, while at his work a few days ago, was stricken with paralysis, and since has been confined to his room, unable to even speak or handle himself. His son Walton of College Springs, Ia., is here helping care for him. His attending physician regards him in a serious condition.

One of the leading dailies of this part of Missouri, and which finds itself in the writer's study every night, always begins its editorial column with a passage of scripture or a quotation from God's Word. The newspaper these days is a strong agency for good, and a creator of high ideals.

Rev. H. F. Doreas and his family, of Clearmont, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. M. C. Doreas of Tipton, Ia., were guests at the Methodist parsonage in Burlington Junction Thursday evening. Mr. Doreas is pastor of the Methodist church in Clearmont.

Mr. and Mrs. Loren Smith, proprietors of the "Careful Cleaners Establishment, are in Des Moines this week and next in attendance upon the State Fair, now being held in that city. Before they return they will spend a few days at Lake Okoboji, Ia. They were accompanied on their trip by Miss Minnie Everhart, of Maryville, a sister of Mrs. Smith, and E. L. Stafford, a brother-in-law. Mr. Stafford lives west of Barnard.

Burlington Junction is to lose one of its best families among the younger set, in person of Edwin Lewis, and his estimable wife. He with his brother, Stewart, of Kansas City, has bought the Page County Democrat, of Clarinda, Ia., and will take immediate possession of the business. Their departure is very much regretted.

Mr. Alva Dykes, a barber in the Curnutt barber shop, was called to Princeton, Mo., Friday afternoon of last week on account of the death of his father. L. C. Livengood of Clearmont is taking his place during his absence. He will be gone about a week.

John Houston, one of Burlington Junction's hustling dairymen, spent Thursday of this week in Clarinda, on business. He returned home in the afternoon in time to deliver the milk to his customers on time.

Quite a number of our high school teachers were in Maryville, Thursday and Friday of this week in attendance upon the annual August County Teachers' meeting. They report a helpful and interesting meeting.

Nine bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church, will be in these parts, for the next two months holding Methodist Conference. They are Bishops Leete, Waldorf, Mead, Nuelsen, Clair, (colored) Hughes, Keeney, Anderson, and Smith. At these various conferences the pastors will get their assignments for another year's work. Hundreds of preachers, and thousands of members will be interested in these meetings.

Burlington Junction was signally honored a few days ago by a visit from Congressman Charles L. Faust, one of the leading members of the House of Representatives in Washington. He was here looking after his political fences leading up to the coming election in November. He was accompanied by Fred Hull, now past master, and former editor of the Maryville Tribune, of Maryville. They were welcome visitors.

It has been decided by the two churches of town that no more open air meetings will be held this year. The union services will continue, however, for a few Sunday nights more, but will alternate between the two Church buildings. The service next Sunday night will be held in the Christian church and Rev. G. H. Van Houten, a speaker for the broadcasting station, KMA in Shenandoah, will be the preacher. Don't fail to hear him. His subject will be "In His Steps," a a travelogue of his personal experiences and observations while travelling in the Holy Land.

Herschel Houston, traveling salesman for the De Laval Separator Co., but who resides here in Burlington Junction, was in attendance upon the Gentry County Fair, held in Albany, the county seat, where he had charge of a milking machine demonstration, for his company. He reports a very profitable visit.

Miss Minnie Carlston, of Minneapolis, Minn., came a few days ago as a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Dwyer. She left Friday morning for Clarinda, Ia., for a few days visit with friends on her way home.

Burlington Junction seems to be on a very popular air route, several planes having passed over the town in various directions Friday morning. They seemed to be from the Rosecran Field in St. Joseph en route to Des Moines and other northern points.

Sheriff Lowell B. Campbell, of Maryville was in town Friday, having been in the neighborhood of Elmo on official business. He is driving a new Sport Star Six, which is a very attractive car.

Cecil Rhodes of Red Oak, Ia., visited a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Rhodes, in the early part of the week. He is now back at his job in Red Oak.

Miss Hildred DeNeen, one of Nodaway County's most popular teachers, will leave for Barnard, Sunday where she will begin her school work for the year at the Baker school, two miles west of Barnard. Her many friends wish her great success in her work as teacher.

Mrs. Emma Taylor, a long-time resident of Nodaway County, and for the past few years a resident of Burlington Junction, is ill at her home here in town. At her advanced age, improvement seems very slow. Her daughter, Mrs. Etta Anderson of Wray, Colo., is here taking care of her. Mrs. Taylor's friends are many who wish for her a complete recovery.

Farmers are busy getting in their third cutting of alfalfa hay. They hay is of good quality, but does produce the heavy yield, as former cuttings have. Alfalfa is fast becoming one of the leading hay crops among the farmers of this community.

Hints and Helps for Farmers

by J. Ross Fleetwood County Extension Agent

In company with H. M. Garlock, Extension Specialist in Animal Husbandry with the Missouri College of Agriculture, I have visited most of the calves in the Baby Beef Club during the week. The boys and girls as a whole have done an extra good job of feeding this year. Mr. Garlock stated that we had the best bunch of calves which has ever come out of Nodaway County. Some very interesting facts are brought out in these calves regarding feeding practices. The county show which will probably be held Oct. 2 or 4 should be worth seeing. Definite announcement as to date and rules will be published later.

Miss Fra Clark, Home Economics Extension Specialist for the Missouri College of Agriculture, spent this week in scoring the kitchens entered in the kitchen improvement contest last January. Great improvements in the efficiency of a number of kitchens were noted as a result of the contest. September 8 a tour will be held to visit some of the kitchens which have made improvements that are most practical for the average farm home. Everyone interested in a better home is invited to attend a part or all of the tour. Stops will also be made to see demonstration lawns, bedrooms and living rooms. A recently constructed septic tank will also be visited. Men, women and children are invited to attend.

That Nodaway County farmers are becoming interested in lime is demonstrated by the fact that over 500 tons of limestone have been ordered through this office this year. Ground limestone is a by product of the rock quarries furnishing material for Buildings and roads and can be purchased for the cost of loading plus freight. While it is still a by-product and can be secured for less than the cost of grinding, is a good time to secure some lime for that sweet clover or alfalfa field.

The Rockford 4-H Garment Making Club held their judging contest, demonstration contest and achievement day Thursday, Aug. 20, at the Rockford Church. Their local leader, Mrs. Jerry Fisher, reported that their original enrollment was nineteen, all of whom completed the work. The nineteen girls enrolled made a total of 120 garments or more than an average of 6 garments each. The girls are all very enthusiastic over the work and have made definite plans to have a 4-H Garment Making II Club next year. Any community desiring an opinion as to the value of club work should talk to any one of the mothers of these girls.

Numerous inquiries regarding the European corn borer are being received at this office. Leonard Hoseman of the Entomology Department of the Missouri College of Agriculture states that it is very unlikely that there should be an infestation in Nodaway County, although not impossible. The closest known infestation is in Northern Ohio. This insect does its damage while in the larva or catapillar stage. It burrows inside the stalk and ear. It is usually first noticed when the tassels on the infested area begin to break over about six or eight inches from the top. Specimens of any corn boring insects should be brought to this office for identification. They should be brought in the stalk if possible. Mr. Hoseman stated that even in infested areas it was possible to raise good corn but that the cost of production was increased. Federal quarantine prohibits the shipping of corn in the ear from any infested areas and everyone should cooperate by not smuggling any corn from this area into a non infested area. This is a serious pest which can be kept out easier than it can be fought here at home.

Now is the time for anyone interested in Certified poultry work to begin preparations for the work next year. In order to get a flock certified, records have to be kept on the flock for one year previous to certification. These records start Nov. 1 and run to Nov. 1 of the succeeding year. The flock must make an average production of 25 eggs per hen during the period from Nov. 1 to March 1. If the records are kept and the flock makes the required record it is eligible for certification in the fall of 1927. I would like to have the names of all who are interested in this work so that I can give them more detailed information. The records positively start Nov. 1, so there isn't much time for delay.

Important Announcement

received by us today from the Ford Company

August 27, 1926.

To All Dealers:

The air has been full of rumors and surely by now our customers should be convinced that all this gossip is insidious conversation promulgated by uninformed parties.

There has been nothing authentic on which to base all this talk. We have told you through our road force and now telling you again that THERE IS NO NEW FORD GOING TO BE INTRODUCED.

The facts are that we are building the best Ford car in appearance and in quality that we have ever placed on the market. In spite of this highest quality job, we have the lowest initial cost, the lowest parts cost and the lowest labor cost in the history of the Ford business. These are facts and the sooner they are firmly established in the minds of our customers the better our business will be. Our present line fits every transportation need, either for business or for personal use. Moreover, you know that it is not a Ford policy to have yearly models and the public knows it. There is no such thing as a '26 model or a '27 model or a '28 model. The trouble is, we allow the public to forget that our improvements are made continuously, one by one, and that it is not our practice to bring out a yearly model as is the policy of some manufacturers.

The GIRL in the MIRROR

By Elizabeth Jordan

COPYRIGHT BY THE CENTURY COMPANY

THE STORY.

CHAPTER I.—Barbara Devon's wedding and departure of her honeymoon leaves her brother "Laurie," successful playright but somewhat inclined to wildness, without her restraining influence. His theatrical associates, Rodney Bangs and Jacob Epstein, promise to "keep an eye on him."

CHAPTER II. — Laurie, who is wealthy, refuses to settle down to work, announcing his intention of resting and seeking "adventure." From his window in New York he sees the reflection of a beautiful girl in a mirror in the house opposite.

CHAPTER III.—Devon learns from the elevator boy in the girl's house that her name is Mayo. Again in the mirror's reflection he sees her with a revolver and fears she means to commit suicide. He breaks into her apartment and, winning her confidence, induces her to lunch with him, though she warns him of "danger."

CHAPTER IV.—Perceptibly agitated by the arrival of a man in the restaurant, she mutters that he has "found her." Learning that she is unmarried and the man has no claim on her, Laurie, incensed, accosts the stranger.

CHAPTER V.—Accusing the man of annoying Miss Mayo, Devon warns him to end his espionage. The stranger is politely sarcastic, but from him Laurie learns the girl's first name is Doris. She tells him her persecutor is Herbert Ransome Shaw.

Chapter VI.—To Louise Ordway, his invalid sister-in-law, and firm friend, Laurie admits he is "interested" in Doris, not revealing her identity.

CHAPTER VII.—Doris ' resolutely declines to meet Mrs. Ordway, and sternly vetoes Laurie's suggestion of applying to the police to protect her from Shaw.

CHAPTER VIII.—With Rodney Bangs, young Devon calls on Mrs. Ordway again, but only Rodney is admitted to the sick-room. His visit perceptibly cheers the invalid.

CHAPTERIX.—Laurie has Doris agree to place a bright-hued scarf in her window, which he can see from his own, as a signal she needs help. Accosting Shaw, Devon, at his invitation, accompanies him to his rooms. There he meets another man, Shaw's "secretary." Shaw demands that Laurie stop interfering in Miss Mayo's affairs, and Devon's determined refusal results in a general fistic mixup, during which Laurie is chloroformed.

CHAPTER X.—Laurie recovers consciousness next morning in a cellar from which he makes his escape. From his room he sees the signal of distress hanging from Doris' window.

CHAPTER XI.—Laurie learns that Doris went away with two men whom he recognizes as Shaw and his "secretary." In Doris' room he finds a scribbled note the girl had left, intomating she is being conveyed to Long Island, to an "old house." In his speedy car he sets out to follow her.

CHAPTER XII.—Disguised as a tramp, in clothes procured at a garage, Laurie gains entrance to the house, overpowers a female caretaker, and finds Doris unhurt but, naturally, in a highly nervous condition. They find themselves prisoners.

CHAPTER XIII.—Laurie gets the door open, but, to his astonishment, the girl seems unwilling to leave. While they hesitate, Shaw, the secretary, and two laborers surprise them. The young man fights them off and escapes, leaving Doris.

When those four men, headed by Shaw, had entered that upper room, Doris had not been surprised. She had expected them. Moreover, she had not been really afraid. Instead, she had worn a look of flaming anger and of sudden resolution. She had stepped forward as if to speak. Her very lips had been parted for speech. Then, Shaw had looked at her, and slowly she had turned away and stood staring out of the window, her back to the room and its tableau. In short, with one glance of his veiled, protruding eyes, Shaw had conquered her, and Laurie himself had seen, what no one could have made him believe, her instantaneous and complete submission.

It was this revelation which had added the smoke barrage of doubt to the situation, clouding his faculties and temporarily stifling his faith. In the face of this, how could he still trust? Yet he had promised to trust, to believe, "whatever happened." Those had been his own words, and she had wept and told him he was "wonderful!"

The deep breath he had drawn ended in a sigh. He was fighting more than one storm, and in this instant he felt an indescribable weariness of soul and body. But not for a second did he hesitate in the course he had decided on. Later, when Doris was safe, perhaps things would clear up. For the moment there was one thing, and one alone, to be done.

The trees around the house made the approach under their cover a fairly easy one. However, he moved slowly, missing no precaution. He hardly believed the zeal of the Italians would keep them out in the storm, but they might have rigged up some sort of shelter, or, perhaps probably, they might be doing sentry work at some of those dark windows.

Clinging close to the trees, he skirted the house, then approached it from the rear, and slipped along the side of the building, hugging the wall. As he noiselessly moved he listened, but no sound came from the inside. When he reached the front right wing he stopped, and, looking up, verified his swift impressions of the afternoon.

A wide veranda swung around the front and side of this wing, supported by substantial pillars, up any one of which he knew he could climb like a cat. The roof of the veranda opened on the low French windows of the upstairs sitting-room. There was no question that within a few moments he himself could enter that sitting-room.

The real question, and again he carefully considered it, was how, once in the room, he could get the girl out of it. She could not climb railings and slide down pillars. There was a window on the rear end of the wing, above what plainly served in summertime as a veranda dining-room. This end of the veranda was glassed in, and over it a trellis afforded a support for frozen vines that now shivered in the storm. If he could get Doris out at that window, he might be able to get her down to the ground with the help of the trellis. But from what room did the window open, and how much of the upper hall would they have to traverse before reaching it? Not much, he fancied.

Again he looked around, and listened. There was no sound or motion, save those caused by the storm. The next instant he was climbing the pillar toward the dimly lighted window. The ascent was not so easy as he had pictured it. To his chagrin he made several unsuccessful efforts before he finally drew himself over the top of the veranda roof, and, lying flat in the snow, slowly recovered the breath exhausted by his efforts.

Lying thus, and stretching out an arm, he could almost touch the nearest window with his fingers, almost, but not quite. Still lying flat, he dragged himself a yard farther. His head was now in line with the window, but the close-drawn shade shutout all but the suggestion of the inner light. He hesitated a moment, then, very cautiously, tapped on the frosty pane.

There was no response. He tapped again, and then a third time, twice in succession and more compelling. This time he thought he heard a movement in the room, but he was not sure.

He waited a moment, then softly signaled again. There was no question about the movement in the room. He heard it distinctly, heard it approach the window, heard it cease, then saw the curtain slowly drawn. The face of Doris looked out, at first vaguely, as if she had fancied the noise some manifestation of the storm. But in the next instant she glanced down, saw him, and obviously checked an exclamation. In another moment she had opened the window, and without straightening up he had slipped across the sill.

Neither spoke. Laurie was looking about the room, reassuringly empty, save for those two. He closed the window, drew the shade, and became conscious that she held his hand and was drawing him urgently toward the fire. At the same time she answered his unasked question.

"They're all down in the kitchen, I think. Listen!"

She opened the door leading to the hall, and, going out, leaned over the stair-rail.

"Yes, they're still there," she reported when she came back. "All but one of the Italians. They're eating now, and after that I think they're planning to leave."

"Where's the hag?"

"Waiting on them."

She spoke detachedly, almost dully. As in the morning, she was not surprised; but tonight there was in her manner a suggestion of repressed excitement which it had not held before.

"Have you a heavy coat?" he asked her.

"Yes."

"Get it and put it on, quick. Don't waste any time." He indicated the buckled house-shoes she still wore. "And put on some real shoes, if you have them."

Without replying, she disappeared. He followed her into the bedroom in which, during the hours of his presence that afternoon, the hag had found uneasy asylum. He indicated a door.

"Where does that lead?"

"Into a bathroom."

"There's a back window over the veranda. What room does that mean?"

"A bedroom off the hall."

"Good!"

She followed his thought. "But I don't think we can risk that. One of the Italians is patrolling the hall. That's why they haven't locked the door. I caught a glimpse of him just now, coming toward the foot of the stairs."

He stared at her frowningly, then, walking to the bed, stripped it with an arm-swing and seized the sheets.

"Then it's simply a question of lowering you from the front," he cried, curtly. "I'll lower you as far as I can, and we'll have to risk a drop of a few feet. Snow's safe."

As he spoke, he was hurriedly tearing and roping the sheets. "Used to do this at school when I was a kid," he explained. "Quite like old times. Now get on the coat and shoes, please."

She needed the reminder. She was staring at this visitor, who had the face of the man she knew and the voice and manner of a stranger. All trace of young Devon's debonair indifference was gone. He had the cold eyes and set jaw of a determined man, busy at some task which would assuredly be done, but his air of detachment equaled her own.

When she was ready, and still with his new air of businesslike concentration on the job in hand, he adjusted the linen ropes, and after a preliminary survey of the grounds, led her through the window and out on the veranda roof. Here he briefly told her what to do, suiting action to words with entire efficiency, and assumering her unquestioning obedience as a matter of course.

The lowering was not the simple exercise he had expected, any more than the upward climb had been. Light as she was, it was clear that her unsupported weight would be a heavy drag upon a body resting insecurely on a slippery roof with nothing more substantial than snow and ice to cling to. But eventually she was down, a little shaken but unhurt, and he was beside her.

"Now, let's see how fast you can run," he suggested; and for the first time his whispered voice held a ring of youth she knew. "Shaw's watchers may suddenly begin to watch, or even to see something."

She responded to his changed tone with an uncontrollable gasp of relief, which he attributed to excitement.

"Don't worry. All right now, I think," he said, with an immediate return to curtness. It steadied her as no other attitude on his part could have done.

"Can you drive a Pierce Arrow?" he asked, as they plunged ahead through the snowdrifts.

"Yes."

"That's fine. That's great. I was afraid you couldn't" This was Laurie again. He went on urgently. "If we're stopped or separated, do exactly as I say. Don't lose an instant. Rush to my car. It's over there, among the trees. See?—over there at the right. It's turned toward the road." He indicated the spot. "Get in, go to the left at the first turn, drive full speed to a garage a quarter of a mile down the main road. No matter what happens, don't stop till you reach it. Go into the garage and wait half an hour for me. If I'm not there then, drive on to New York and go to this address." He gave her a penciled slip he had prepared. "Mrs. Ordway is a good friend of mine. She'll take you in and look after you. Will you do that?"

"Yes." The word was so low that he had to bend his head to catch it. His voice softened still more.

"Don't worry. It will be all right. Only, some way, I can't believe that Shaw is letting us off as easily as this."

She stumbled, but he caught her. For a moment he supported her, and in that moment, under the sense of her nearness and dearness and helplessness, the hardness of the past hour disappeared. He did not understand her. Perhaps he would never understand her. But whatever she was, she was all right.

Half leading, half carrying her, he got her to the car and into it. He had actually raised one foot to follow her when something stirred in the shadows near them, and the familiar, squat figure of Shaw stepped forth.

Though in his sudden appearance he had followed the dramatic instinct that seemed so strong in him, he had wholly lost the effect of unleashed fury he had worn in the afternoon. He was even smiling with an affection of good humored tolerance. He had the air of a man who, with the game in his hands can afford to be patient and affable.

"Oh, come now," he said easily, "don't leave us quite so soon! Since you've come back for another visit, we've decided to keep you a while. You know, I warned you of that."

Laurie made a sign to Doris, which she instantly obeyed. Even before the indolent voice had finished speaking, she was at the wheel and the car had started. Shaw, springing forward with goggling eyes and dropped jaw, found his way blocked by a man as new to him as he had been to Doris, a Laurence Devon who all in an instant had taken on the black rage he himself had dropped. In the hands of this stranger was a revolver which neatly covered Shaw's plump chest. Before this apparation, Shaw backed away percately.

"Stand exactly where you are." Devon's voice was very quiet, but there was a quality in it which added to the icy chill of the night. "I know you're not alone, but if any of your pals shows himself, I'll shoot him dead. If you move or utter one word, or cry out, I'll kill you. Do you understand?"

Shaw did understand. The look in his protruding eyes proved that. Those eyes shifted wildly, turning this way and that, as if in search of the help which lurked among those spectral trees. He himself stood as motionless as one of them, and as he stood me moistened his thin lips with the tip of a trembling tongue.

"Now," said Laurie, "I'm going to have the truth. I'm going to have it all, and I'm going to have it quick. If you don't tell it, I'll kill you. Probably I shall kill you anyway. But first you will answer two questions. What power have you got over Miss Mayo? And what are you trying to do?"

Shaw hesitated. Again his protruding eyes turned wildly to the right and left, as if in search of help. Still holding the revolver in his right hand, Laurie slowly reached out his left and seized the other's throat in the grip of his powerful young fingers.

"Keep still," he warned, as the other started to raise his hands. "You think the game isn't up, but it is. Now talk, and talk quick."

He tightened his grip on the thick, slippery throat. "I'm enjoying this," he rasped. "If you were anything but the snake you are, I'd give you a fighting chance. But a creature that uses chloroform and hires three thugs to help him in his dirty jobs—"

He increased the pressure on the thick neck. Shaw's face began to purple. His eyes bulged horribly. He choked, and with the act gave up.

"Hold on," he gurgled. "Listen."

The pressure on his throat slightly relaxed. With eyes closed, he collapsed against the nearest tree trunk. Laurie followed him, expecting some treacherous move; but all the fight seemed out of the serpent. He was clutching at his coat collar as if not yet able to breathe.

"I've had enough of this," he finally gasped out. "I'll tell you everything."

Even as he spoke, Laurie observed that one of the clutching, clawing hands had apparently got hold of what it was seeking.

* * * * * * *

Doris, feeling her way through the blackness of the storm on the unfamiliar country road, heard above the wind the sound of a sharp explosion which she thought meant a blown-out tire. She did not stop. Before her, only a short distance away, was the garage to which she was hastening and where she was to wait for Laurie. To go on meant to take a chance, but she had been ordered not to stop. There was a certain exhileration in obeying that order. Crouched over the wheel, with head bent, and guessing at the turns she could not see, she pressed on through the storm.

Runaway Restores Woman's Lost Voice

Plevna, Mo., Aug. 28.—A runaway team is responsible for the recovery of the voice of Mrs. J. R. Humphrey of near Plevna. Mrs. Humphrey lost her voice in April from an attack of the "flu" and has not been able to speak above a whisper since that time. Recently a runaway team dashed into the Humphrey yard and the resultant fright from the presence of the dashing animals restored her speech.

Clarence—A survey is being made here to gain some idea of the cost of a waterworks and sewer system. It is planned to vote on a bond issue later for the improvements.

Orphan Annie Tells All About Her Own Boss

Yessir, folks, I know a lot about this guy, Harold Gray, that's never got out. If he was square with me I wouldn't be spillin' it now but under the circumstances I'm going to come clean and he can like it or not, see?

He was born in Kankakee, Ill., January 20, 1894 but inside of six months he got wise to himself and jumped town. But he wasn't so awful wise at that cause he lived on a farm till he was twenty-three years old. 'Magine that!

He had a better break 'n he's given me though. He got to go to school. And in 1917 he gradge-waited from Purdue University at Lafayette, Ind. But most of the education he got there rubbed off since. He'd worked on the Lafayette Journal doin' cartoon pichers an' collectin' bills and 'a little o' ever'thing, too.

The Chicago Tribune musta figured he was a valuable man 'cause they paid him fifeen bucks a week to quit the farm and run errands in the department, and draw pitchers, too, once in a while.

Then he got into the army, but by the time he'd been made into a shave tail and got as far as Atlanta, Ga., everybody was sick o' fighting and they stopped th' war. So he came back to the Tribune. In 1921 he figgered there were a lotta suckers payin' good money for commercial drawings so he quit the Tribune and started a studio. But in a couple o' years so many other birds got th' same idea that business wasn't so good.

Then my boss gota job as an assistant to this guy Sidney Smith. Sid would draw Andy, and Harold would stick a chair under him and maybe put a few tables and a fireplace an' things around. But Sid musta taught him a lot ' cause on August 5, 1924 he discovered me in the "Home." He had sense enough to spot a meal ticket the minute he saw me. I'll say that for him. And what could a poor orphan kid like me do?

Sincethen, folks, I've been pluggin' day and night makin' a living for this guy. He says if I was funny I could make him a lot more money, maybe. But I can't be funny and I won't try, for him or anybody else, I'm only human, I am, and I'm just goin' to be maybe.

Course he's had me rich at times, but that make me feel even worse when I get poor again. An' here I was gettin' along swell with the circus when what does this guy do? Pushes me of a a trapese and blame near kills me. If you can see anything funny about that yer crazy. But then I guess it'll work out for the best. And I hadn't ought to rap this guy too hard. If it hadn't been for him I'd been in that "Home" yet, most likely. And folks seem to like me better when I'm just myself than if I was all the time havin' good luck and pullin' a lotta wise cracks.

I get sorta sore at him sometimes. That's why I've told you this. An' I know a lot more dirt about him, too, I do. But I'm not mad enough right now. If he doesn't square himself with me pretty soon, though, I could tell you some things about him that'd curl yuor hair. But I hate to squawk on anybody. Even him.

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, Aug. 28—Today's session of the Board of Trade saw no interruptions of the general sag in grain values that set in early in the week. Wheat and oats shared the lowest yesterday and corn lost good fractions on all deliveries. Wheat held comparatively steady despite the downward trend following bear news.

Reports from foreign crops did not seem very favorable but did not seem to worry export buyers.

Provisions were higher strengthened by the hog market.

TO CAMP ON GRAND RIVER

COLLEGE FOOTBALL MEN LEAVE ON SEPTEMBER 5

EQUIPMENT ALL NEW

Cridiron Stock Boosted With Return to Maryville of Captain-Elect David Eads

Twenty-five husky football prospects from the State Teachers College will leave Maryville a week from tomorrow for a seven-day's outing on Grand River, three and a half miles west of McFall. These men will take part in the annual football camp which is sponsored by the College.

H. Frank Lawrence and P. R. Jones coaches at the College will be in charge of the camp, and Lemon McGee, famous Battery C cook, will be in charge of the camp kitchen.

Football practice at the College will officially start on September 14, the opening day of the fall quarter at the institution. The Bearcats will get a week of conditioning, however, at the Grand river camp, and should return to Maryville in fit shape to stand the rigors of early-season practice.

A glance into the "property room" at the College gymnasium shows that the Bearcats are not going to be wanting in equipment for football this year. Row on row of shining new green and white headgears, box on box of the most improved football shoes, and pile after pile of new jersies, pants, and pads, line the shelves of the room.

Harold R. O'Banion is property man at the gymnasium. And this husky athlete has a man-sized job on his hands, keeping all of the equipment in order and free from moths.

Football prospects for the Bearcats took a jump this week with the return to Maryville of David ("Ikey") Eads, captain-elect and all-state back last year. Eads has been booting the pigskin this week, and those who have watched him say that his educated toe is still in apple-pie order.

The football schedule still stands as announced last week by Coach Lawrence. The three open dates are now being considered for games, however, and the College mentor hopes to add at least two more contests to the season of intercollegiate competition.

Newspaper Directory For 1776 Was Small

Albert S. Watson Has Copy of Tiny List of Papers Published in Revolutionary Period.

Albert S. Watson, living west of Maryville, has in his possession a copy of the American Directory of 1776 which was given to him as a souvenir at the Centennial exposition at Philadelphia in 1876, fifty years ago. Mr. Watson attended the Centennial and has kept the souvenir as a relic.

In 1776, there were thirty-seven papers listed. New Hampshire had one paper at that time; Massachusetts had seven; Rhode Island two; Connecticut four; New York four; Pennsylvania nine; Maryland two; Virginia two; Georgia three; South Carolina three.

Nearly all of the papers in 1776 were published weekly and were four pages.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Phipps and George Smith, of Battle Creek, Mich., are expected to arrive in Maryville for a visit with relatives here. The trip is being made in a motor car.

CONSTRUCTION IS UNDER WAY

MUCH BUILDING IS BEING DONE NEAR CONCEPTION.

A HUGE RESERVOIR

Million-Gallon Capacity Storage Tank For Monastery And College—Wing On Convent Group.

Building programs for the Benedictine Monastery, at Conception, and the Convent, at Clyde, are being carried out on a large scale this year. The construction of a reservoir with a capacity for 1-million gallons of water for the Monastery is well underway and a portion of a wing being added to the Convent is expected to be completed before cold weather.

Water for use at the Monastery and Conception College has, in the past, been supplied by several wells, located on the farm there but the reservoir was needed to assure an ample supply of water during the entire year. While the wells have never been completely empty there has, at times, been water shortages during the summer months. The huge reservoir, now being constructed southeast of the college and in the farm buildings group, will hold enough water to supply the Monastery and college for four months.

The supply tank is being built of reenforced concrete at a cost of nearly $15,000. A. O. Ruggle, contractor, of Conception is doing the work. Members of the Conception parish have been hauling materials. Excavating for the tank was started early this summer and the reservoir will be completed and ready for use this fall.

Parents and guardians of pupils at the Academy which is maintained by the convent, and relatives of the sisters there will be housed in guest rooms now being provided for in a wing that is now under construction and which joins the main building. The wing, when completed, will extend from the north side of the main Academy building to the chapel. It is being built of brick with concrete floors and will be fireproof throughout. The addition is three stories in height, and is arranged in such a manner that guest rooms can be provided on two floors and class rooms can be maintained on the other floor.

It is expected that a part of the wing will be completed before cold weather and can be used during the winter. Material is on the ground for the construction of the second section of the wing but it is not likely that the work will be completed before spring. Care is being used in laying the brick and setting the concrete and probably there is not a better constructed building in this part of the state. Sisters are on duty about the place while work is in progress and they keep close check on the materials used seeing to it that only the best is used.

An addition to the belfry on the Convent chapel is practically complete and the scaffolding about that place will be removed soon. The belfry is now five stories in height. It is planned to hang a set of bells in the new tower at a later date.

Few people can tell at a glance whether a Used Car is as good as it appears to be. Which makes it doubly important to patronize a dealer who has a reputation for giving honest facts and honest values.

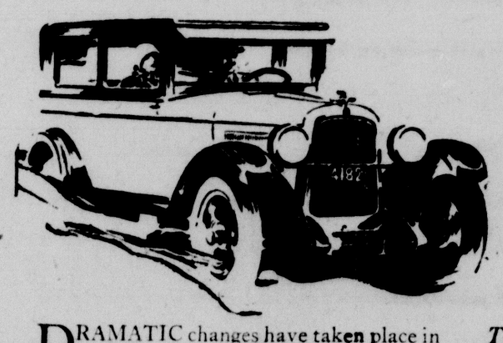
A USED CAR IS ONLY AS DEPENDABLE AS THE DEALER WHO SELLS IT

Now-the Modern Principles of European Design

are embodied in this New-Type Car



DRAMATIC changes have taken place in automobile standards of design. New engineering practices from Europe made the Overland Six instantly popular.

It is new all through . . . brilliantly engineered as a unit . . . not an old fashioned reconstructed chassis.

To outward appearances this car looks very much like conventional automobiles. Except that it is lower to the ground. And smartly European in appearance.

But hidden beneath the body are scores of vital engineering improvements that have practically revolutionized its performance standards . . . improved its riding qualities . . . cut operating costs to a minimum . . . and added immeasurably to its length of service.

You can drive it at an average speed of 40 to 55 miles an hour without excessive strain on the engine.

Its "high-torque" power plant has ample power to master the steepest hills. Gear shifting has been reduced to a minimum.

It has a low gravity center. An outstanding engineering feature due to these modern principles of design. This means greater safety at all speeds. It means protection against sidesway and serious skidding.

And it means comfort such as you've never known before.

How we reduce upkeep expense

Because of new principles of design the operating cost of an Overland Six has been reduced to the very minimum.

Gasoline expense is exceedingly low. So is oil consumption.

And due to its greater operating efficiency, repair costs have been brought to a new low level.

Thousands of owners report remarkable mileage records, with amazing trouble-free performance.

Top place in resale value. You've probably heard of the National Used Car Blue Book. It's published for the guidance of automobile merchants everywhere . . . to help them in purchasing used cars wisely.

A recent issue of this book gives 1st, 2nd, 4th, and 5th places in used car values among the 1925 models of 17 different automobile companies, to Overland!

So you see that modern engineering counts in used car prices. It will mean a lot to you when it's time to trade-in your car.

See the Overland Six and find out about its modern engineering that means plus-value to you!

NOTE: 4-wheel brakes are furnished at slight extra cost.
